

To Prof. Kosta Boshnakov
President of John Atanasoff Society of Automatics and Informatics and the participants in the International Conference "Automatics and Informatics 2021"

Dear Professor Boshnakov,

Dear members of the Society of Automatics and Informatics,

Dear participants in the Conference,

It is my honor and pleasure to congratulate you on the occasion of the International Scientific Conference "Automatics and Informatics 2021" and your upcoming professional holiday - the Day of specialists in computer engineering , information technologies and automation - 4th October.

For more than five decades, the conference has been a significant event for the industry, bringing together leading minds, professionals and promising young scientists from a wide range of fields related to automation and informatics. I believe that the scientific papers presented this year have the potential to expand the boundaries of knowledge in the field of computer science and to direct you to innovative solutions to current problems.

Bulgaria has established traditions, qualified specialists and high potential in automation, informatics, robotics and artificial intelligence. I congratulate the members of the Union of Automation and Informatics "John Atanasoff" for their contribution to the development of modern Bulgarian science, which not only follows the course of world science.

It often overtakes even leading countries with bold new solutions. The rapid growth of the sector and the excellent achievements of our young researchers are largely due to you and your support. On experience and tradition, upgraded with innovation.

I wish all participants in the International Scientific Conference "Automatics and Informatics 2021" fruitful work and new scientific achievements!

September 30, 2021
